RONGKONG, MONDAY, FEB. 22, 1869. CHEFOO.

THE latest news from Chefoo is very much as we anticipated. The reports of gold attracted, as do most diggings, three classes of men—respectable people, who went only to judge as to the prospects of working in gangs with suitable machinery; adventurous parties, of questionable resources, ready to pick up whatever they could on the spot, but in the main law abiding and disinclined to violence; and a third (but fortunately scarce) class of thorough rowdies less inclined to dig than to rob, and speculating rather upon the concourse attracted to the diggings than upon the yield of gold or other metal. It is somewhat remarkable that this third class should have been so slightly repre sented amongst the foreigners attracted to the Shantung province, while it affords a useful argument in the negociations which must undoubtedly take place with in a short period between ourselves and the Chinese upon mining questions. The majority of those who went to Shantung were of the second class-those careless improvident souls who like Mr Micawber are ever waiting for "something to turn up" and rejoice in a similar disregard of rently under the impression that gold was strewn about like shells upon the beach, and that nothing but dainty picking with the fingers was necessary to gather in the golden treasure. These men, destitute of resources, friendless and seldom energetic when steady labor is: required, have naturally fallen upon the Consul's hands. That they have peacefully given in to the exigencies of their position is about the most unfavorable circumstance which could have happened for Chinese views. Had rowdyism and robbery prevailed, had but a few "outrages" been perpetrated upon the coun-

stance proved fatal. try folk of the neighbourhood, all would have felt compelled to acquiesce in the threatened with no rush of grasping and law breaking blackguardism. The irruption threatened is that of steady hard sent to hard labour for six months for havworking men prepared to avail theming stolen a dressing-case from a Chinese selves of every modern aid to mining, and determined to test to the uttermost their freedom to act as they please so long as they do not infringe authorities? Docks are, we know, "open questions," and Dock Company Directors are but mortal-doubly mortal we may presume have, in a local paragraph, complied with a request made to us, and afford the Union Dock Directors the opportunity of contradicting a statement made at the recent meeting of the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Company which they consider incorrect, and, we presume from the contradiction, injurious. We can of course, give no judgment upon the merits of the case, but at present the Union Company certainly seems to have the best of the argument. There is, however, another matter to which attention might be drawn in this connection. Mr Helland informed the meeting that he valued at about $5000 what the Union Dock Company estimated as worth $100,000. Now there is certainly no law to prevent Mr Helland giving his own opinion of the value of any particular property, or saying, as he did, that the Union Dock Company could go on only a short time, and "were cutting their throats" at present prices. But he must recollect that one of three things diate investigation by its shareholders or Mr Helland is mistaken and consequently, blameably careless in giving the currency of a public meeting to such statements; or Mr H, was wilfully mis leading his hearers. The public must judge as to which of these alternatives meets the facts of the case. But we shall scarcely be surprised if something more is heard from the Union Dock Company, after such sweeping and damaging assertions.

The following is a Summary of the reply given by the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce on the 1st February 1868, to Sir Rutherford Alcock's Despatch concerning the opening of New Ports :-

The Chamber is gratified to find Sir R. Alcook is grappling with the difficulties i the way of opening up the Country and will assist in the solution of the difficult problems at issue by every means in its power. That the Ports mentioned by Sir Rutherford Alcock should be opened the Chamber has no doubt whatever, but if expense Consular and Customs staff for each is to necessary then of course a selection must be made of such ports as promise an adequate return in the way of increased trade and the consequent benefit to the population of th various countries interested. To assist this choice the Chamber registers its opini on that Wenchow has the first claim to attention. Its easy approach, existing trade, and proximity to the Tea districts. combine to render it a most important position. Tai-chow being only distant 60 miles from Wenchow is of far less importance. To Ku Shan would prove a convenient Channe for the trade of Corea and part of Manchuria. Southern Ports the chamber considers beyond the sphere of its knowledge or interest. Kiang-chow, Wei-hei harbor on the South of the Shantung Promontory would be useful as a harbor of refuge. The Inland Navigation Question which the Chamber fought for in 1866, is again touched en passant and arguments in favor of it re-enforced, the almost prohibitory restrictions placed on it causing the greatest disappointment, whilst the limitation of the privilege to Boats not propelled steam the Ceamber conceives to be fatal to the development of Trade which is the primary object of the revision of the Treaty. The hamber next strongly advocates the opening up of the entire Country; that the chief places of trade in China and the Mineral resources of the Country should be thown open to the capital and mechanical skill of Europe and America. It calls attention to the vast productive and commer oial region of sze-chueh from which foreign trade is almost entirely cut off and opines that the opening of Chunking a trading town on the Banks of the upper Yangtsze, 720 miles above Hankow, would create a demand for English Manufactures, which would amply repay any trouble, risk or expeuse entailed on the Government in mak-

LOSD RAGLAN AND MR KINGLAKE At no period of his life had he held an independent command of any kind. He had been a confidential and trusted associate of trust had not been of a sort to educate him for the conduct of an army in the field Since he had seen war, forty years of office life had passed over his head. Children unborn at the time of Waterloo had grown to middle age while he was acting as a military secretary at the Horse Guards, where every year of mere pen and ink inevitably added its blurs and blots to the ments record of his Peninsular experience. No body who has any acquaintance with the duties of his official position can suppose that they formed even in a remote degree a suitable preparation for a command war. Yet Mr Kinglake gravely asks us believe that all this time Lord Ragian' generalship had been ripening like a bin age of sixty-six he could look back over the vista of forty years of town and counts life, and recall with such effect that martis experiences of his youth as to be at once fitted to lead hosts, to awe subordinates and to control colleagues. men who, whatever their demerits and considerable and recent experience in war and in command, he is represented as showing himself always their superior. and maintaining what Mr Kinglake call "his ascendant," whether he gives or declines to give them the benefit of his opini-His faculty for estimating the caps bilities of ground, and "that instinctive knowledge of country which was one of natural gifts," cultivated for a half a life time in St. James's Park or the hunting fields of Badmington, enables him discern on a battle-field things hidden from his purblind colleagues. No eye but that of imagination or faith ever detected in Lord Raglan all the qualities which his eulogist ascribed to him. He had been selected for the command for obvious reasons. The war was to be undertaken in concert with a sensitive and iraons ally whom it was important to keep in good humour, and Lord Ragian possessed in his rank, his manners, his easy temhis familiarity with the French language, and his long official experience so many guarantees for the maintenance of cordial relations. It was so dong since we have been engaged in a considerable war that our generals were all old men, and in the absence of any great military reputation we were only following what seemed a safe popular tradition in falling back on the survivor of a famous and successful military epoch. All that Mr Kinglake says of Lord Raglan's imperturbable courage in action, and his patience in difficulty, all that he says of his urbanity and good heart. is well deserved. The length of the cables between the points of suspension in medium temperature is 1,286 ft. The length of the cables between anchorages is 1,828 ft. Length of cables and anchors, 1,888 ft. Height of towers above rock on Cauada side, 105 ft., and on American side, 100 ft. Base of towers, 28 ft. square, and top, 4 ft. square. The surface of the rock on the American side is 5. ft. above that on the Canada aide. The height of the roadway above the rock on both sides is 7s ft. The depth of the auchor pits below the surface of the ground is 18 ft., and the length of the anchor chains under the ground is 30 ft. The anchors are set in solid rock on the Canada side, and in masonry on the American side. The width of the roadway between the parapets is 10 ft., depth of side trues 61 ft., and height of parapet above floor 42 ft. The bridge is supported by two cables, composed of two wire ropes each, which contain respectively 133 No. 9 wires The weight of these wire ropes per lineal foot is 9lb., and the diameter of the cable is 7 in. The total weight of the suspended portion of the cables is 82 tons net. There are 48 stays, weighing 15 tons net. There are 52 guys connected with the bridge. The aggregate breaking strain of the cable is 1,680 tons net, and that of the stays 1,320 tons net, making the total supporting strength of the cables and stays 3,000 tons. The number of suspenders used is 480, with an aggregate strength of 4,800 tons. The weight of the suspended roadway, including weight of cables and stays, is 200 tons. The ordinary working load is 50 tons, and the maximum load is 100 tons; permanent and transitory load. 350 tons The towers when completed will be covered with wood and corrugated iron, and in point of architectural beauty will be highly ornate, imparting to each terminus of the bridge an air of elegance and substantialness, and rendering the whole an attraction among the beauties and wonders of that interesting locality. On the opening of another season, when the roadway will be completed, it will be available for carriages.

4 HIS Medicine is universally admitted to be the most efficacious remedy known to the world. No preparation is so suitable to the climates of India and China as this fine and invigorating medicine. It is particularly adapted to the constitution of European ladies, as it is never failing in its effects in all diseases peculiar to females, while those who are attenuated by the debilitating effects of the above climates will find in this wonderful remedy a kind of talisman whereby they may insure a restora-

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT. The science of Medicine has never before produced any remedy that can be compared to this wonderful Ointment, as it cures after all other means have failed, all woulds, sores, ulcers, and also the most inveterate skin diseases psculiar to the olimates of India and China. It is the true friend of the Soldier and Civilian, as certain old sores can be removed by it that cannot be conquered by any other treat-Hongkong, February 1, 1867.

The author in his Preface says :- "The tables in Chap. VII., for estimating prices, measurement of goods, exchanges, &c. have been selected from those constantly in use among the foreign merchants in China. among the foreign merchants in China.
Those for calculating the prices of tea in dollars or pence have been copied from the more extended tables, by the kind permission of the author, P. Loureiro, Esq. The ast section of the same chapter on "Movements in Bullion," has been prepared and furnished for the Guide by Patrick R. Harper, Esq., of the Commercial Bank of India at Hongkong, who has had much experience in the exchanges and movements of the precious metals in Eastern Asia of the precious metals in Eastern Asia.

"The Appendix of Sailing Directions has been reprinted from the China Pilot." With short interruptions, the coasts from Singapore to Hakodadi are all described in it; and for the Chinese coasts, the Directions have been improved by the insertion of the Chinese characters for the names of all places that could be ascertained."
